Learn how to effectively use this valuable resource tool as your jumping-off point onto the Internet.
- 46B *RootsMagic: Your Home Base for Your Online Research Bruce Buzbee
RootsMagic genealogy and family tree software can be your "home base" for accessing a variety of Internet resources.
- 46C *Where Should I Begin with Each New Family? Carol Whitton, CG
Take advantage of learning opportunities to understand the pitfalls of new research. Review! Use genealogy procedures to their fullest.
- 46D *Ten Resources I Use Every Day: Miscellaneous Tips for the Online Researcher Cyndi Ingle
From Internet tools to specialty databases and tools, you'll learn some of the sites a professional uses each day in her research online.
- 46E *Social Networking for Family History Research Ilene Murray
What makes online social networking important to family history research? Take a look and see for yourself.
- 46F *Using Excel to Organize Your Genealogy Carol Whitton, CG
Try using spreadsheets for complex chronologies, sorting same-name people and events, as well as evaluating data.
- 46G *Navigating DNA Testing Company Websites for Maximum Results Jan Alpert, FNGS
Review the tools available on DNA testing websites; learn to search effectively and to use chromosome browsers, and why it is essential to link a tree.
- 46H *RootsMagic and Ancestry: Together at Last Bruce Buzbee
Learn how to use RootsMagic to easily sync your personal database with your Ancestry tree(s) and to share data and collaborate with others.
- 46I *Google Earth for Genealogists Bob Goode
Location is a necessity in genealogical research. Google Earth can be a key player in your arsenal of applications for research.
- 46J *Coordinating the Cloud: Ancestry, Dropbox, Evernote, FamilySearch, and GoogleDrive Cyndi Ingle
Genealogists must coordinate the efficient use of multiple cloud-based tools to produce great results.
- 46K *Analyzing Your DNA Results to Solve Genealogical Problems Jan Alpert, FNGS
Case studies will illustrate spreadsheets, reports, Gedmatch tools, testing known cousins, finding fathers, and identifying new ancestors.
- 46L *The Hidden Web: Digging Deeper Cyndi Ingle
Don't stop searching when traditional search engines fail you. Explore resources invisible even to Google and hidden deep within websites and proprietary databases.
- 46M *Genealogy Apps for Smart Phones and Tablets Bob Goode
Learn about various ways to utilize your smart devices to help in your genealogical research.
